FOREWORD

It is a great pleasure to present this “Niue 2002 Household Income and Expenditure (HIES) Final Report” on the Household Income and Expenditure Survey conducted in 2002. It provides information on Income and Expenditure pattern of Niuean Households.

The 2002 Household Income and Expenditure survey is the first survey that was conducted in Niue. This tabulation report is produced as a result of this project and it contains detail Statistical Tables which could provide useful information.

I gratefully acknowledge the invaluable support and assistance of Statistics Programme of the Secretariat of the Pacific Community (SPC), HIES steering committee members as well as the co-operation of sample household respondents in making this survey possible.

It is opportune to sincerely thank UNDP and UNESCO for their co-operation and financial support to make this survey a reality.

But not the least, I deeply appreciate and heartily thank to staff of Statistics Unit for their effort to prepare this report.

It is hoped that the report will provide invaluable information for policy makers, planners, administrators and researchers in the public and private sectors, in formulating policies and programmes for the improvement of the lives of Niuean families.

Hon. Mr. Bill Vakaafi Motufoou

Minister of Economic Development Planning and Statistics Unit (EDPSU)

PREFACE

The household Income and Expenditure Survey (HIES) is the first comprehensive survey of its kind conducted by the statistics unit, Premier's department in 2002. This survey provides the information about the income and expenditure pattern of Niue.

The survey was conducted by the statistics unit with technical and financial assistance from United Nations Development Programme (UNDP). The Secretariat of the Pacific Community (SPC) also assisted the project technically and financially.

The objectives of the survey and field operation procedures are already mentioned in Interim Report.

The survey result is discussed in this report.

First of all, I would like to express my thank to Government of Niue and UNDP/UNESCO to give me the opportunity to conduct Niue 2002 Household Income and Expenditure Survey.

I would also like to thank to Secretary to Government Mrs. Sisilia Talagi who contributed her valuable comments since HIES preparation phase.

My thanks should also go to HIES steering committee members for their contributions to complete the HIES successfully.

I deeply appreciate and heartily thank to all respondents for their willing co-operation in providing the information required of them, to all enumerators and supervisor for their hard work in collecting and checking the data in shouldering the responsibilities during this major and difficult task. I am grateful to UNDP for their financial support.

I would also like to record my appreciation to the Secretariat of the Pacific Community (SPC) through the expert service of Mr. Chris Ryan and Mrs Kim Robertson who had contributed their most valuable technical services in the production of the survey report.

I would also like to express my thank to the two staff KimRay Vaha (Assistance Statistician) and Natalie Tatui (Trainee, EDPSU) for their contribution during the period of HIES project.

I would also like to thank to all those who had assisted to this project in one way or another, for their contribution.

PART I

1. INTRODUCTION

The 2002 Niue Household Income and Expenditure Survey was the first HIES conducted in Niue by the Statistics Unit through UNESCO funding in 2002 (UNESCO were subcontracted by UNDP) in consultation with the HIES Steering Committee and with assistance from the Statistics Programme of the Secretariat of the Pacific Community. In the 2002 HIES, information on housing characteristics and particulars of household members concerning demographic, social and economic aspects were collected. Special emphasis was given to household income and expenditure.

Household expenditure was collected on several expenditure items in detail, which was classified into 9 major groups:

|--------------------------|--|
| 1. Food | 6. Tobacco and alcohol |
| 2. Housing | 7. Payment of credit schemes and loans |
| 3. Housing operation | 8. Miscellaneous goods and services |
| 4. Clothing and footwear | 9. Income |
| 5. Transport | |

These major groups are also classified into subgroups. List of the subgroups is shown in Appendix 1.

2. Data Entry

Data entry started on 13 September 2002 and ended on 27 September 2002 with three data entry operators after working hours. Data entry was completely carried out with three personal computers by using Microsoft Access Database, designed by SPC expert. As data entry operators were Government staff, HIES data entry was usually done after office hours (ie. 4:30 PM to 8:30 PM and week ends). Data entry period is two weeks.

3 Checking, Editing and Coding of Forms

The field supervisor and enumerators undertook the checking and editing of the filled up questionnaire forms after the interviews were completed. The completed forms were brought back to the statistics unit on 12 September 2002. The enumeration period was 24 August 2002 to 12 September 2002 (ie. 3 weeks). Some enumerators took one more week to collect the second diary. Coding was done in statistics unit by supervisors. Coding operation was started on 9 September 2002 to 27 September 2002. Coding process was also done after working hours. (ie 4 PM to 9 PM). Before tabulation start, the following checks were done:

1. Daily expenditure diary section 1 and 2 had item codes
2. The largest expenditure items were valid
3. Where diary expenditure amount is 0
4. Diary item codes were valid
5. If the household indicate that an item was purchased via a loan that a household had a loan
6. The tenure of the dwelling agree agreed with rent payments
7. Rent was pay for rented houses
8. People whose main activity was working had recorded a job
9. People whose main activity was not working had not recorded a job

10. There was one household head per household
11. Mortgage on dwelling purchase and construction of loan amount, year of loan, current interest rate, repayments and frequency of repayments
12. Loans (personal) had loan amount, whether the loan was repaid, year of loan, interest rate, repayments and frequency of repayments
13. Main daily activity was consistent with work status which was consistent with occupation and wages and salaries or earnings from sales of goods produced in the home or other business activities
14. Every person had an age and this was consistent with the questions answered on the different questionnaires
15. Large expenditure amount in the daily expenditure diary considered to be 'one off' expenditures were not include in the 'rating ' to annual amounts from the two week period
16. Income from the sale of goods produced or other 'self employment' was consistent with gross income and expenses, tax paid and drawings (including the value of goods consumed in the home)
17. Checks were run on the households with highest and lowest annual household income as well as expenditure
18. Comparison check with household income and expenditure to see if there were any 'outliers' of large or small amounts

4. Data Processing

Data processing was done in statistics unit by Ms Kim Robertson from SPC and her counterpart Miss Natalie Tatui from Economic Development Planning and Statistics Unit (EDPSU). Microsoft Access and Microsoft Excel software were used for tabulation.

5. Survey Weighting

For a sample survey to provide information for the whole population of interest (all the households in Niue or all the people in Niue), the individual survey records are 'weighted' to population estimates. The principle is that each household and individual in the sample 'represents' other households and individuals in the population which were not selected in the sample. So, for example, if all the households in Niue were placed on a list and every fifth household was selected in the sample, then each of the households in the sample would represent itself and four other households – five in total. So in this case all sample households would have a weight of five.

The sample selection methodology used for the HIES was undertaken by the Statistics Office with assistance from the SPC and separate documentation is available on request.

The final number of households included in the HIES was 101, and the total estimated households in 2002 was 504. The sample weights for households were developed by $504 \div 101 = 4.99$. Each household in the HIES was multiplied by 4.99 to make estimates for the total number of households. The HIES data can only be used at the national level for Niue as 'village' based estimates cannot be produced from this weighting method.

The estimates for the number of people in Niue used the 2001 Census results and the population growth rate of -3.4% . This gave a total estimated population size of 1,720 with 863 males and 857 females. Because these accurate population estimates were available it was possible to develop separate sample weights for males and females from the HIES; making the HIES estimates more reliable for gender. The weights used for the population were:

Male	Female	Household
4.69	3.95	4.99

The weights indicate that there were fewer males included in the sample of HIES households than females. This anomaly was checked against the 2001 Census results and the same gender distribution was found in the Census for the households selected in the HIES. So the weights were adjusted to reflect the gender distribution for the whole population based on the 2001 Census results.

The above weights were applied to the survey data in producing the tabulations. The application of these weights provides population estimates for Niue, not just results that apply to the sample households and individuals.

6. Discussion on Niue HIES 2002 Results

A total of 60 tables were produced: 9 household tables, 4 demographic tables, 5 workforce tables, 16 income tables and 26 expenditure tables. All these tables were shown in Part II.

Particulars of household members, such as relationship to head of household, sex, age and ethnicity of all household members are recorded for each household and marital status, educational status and activity status of household members of age 15 and above were recorded for each household in the survey.

Results obtained on size of household, tenure of household's dwelling, demographic, social and economic aspects of household members will be discussed in the following section.

6.1 Estimated household, household size and household and population

The estimated household for Niue HIES (2002) was 504 and the total population is 1720 with 863 males and 857 females.

Size of household shows the number of household members. Changing demographic, social and economic patterns influence it.

From the result of Niue HIES (2002), based on 101 sample households

- the estimated average size of households is 3.41. This is comparable to 3.4, which is the average size of household obtained in 2001 census of Niue.
- the estimated household population is 1720. This is comparable to household population of 1736 obtained in 2001 census of Niue.

6.2 Tenure of household's dwelling

Tenure	HH	%
Own outright	259	51
Rent free	130	26
Mortgage/Loan	80	16
Rented	35	7
Total	504	100

Tenure of household's dwelling were classified in Niue HIES (2002) as own outright, rent free, mortgage/loan and rented. The survey result shows that about 51% of the dwellings are own outright, 26% of the dwellings are rent free, 16% of the dwellings are mortgage/Loan and only 7% of the dwellings are rented.

6.3 Tenure of dwelling and gender of head of household

Tenure	% of male head	% of female head
Own outright	53	46
Rent free	25	29
Mortgage/Loan	16	17
Rented	7	8
Total	76	24

Among 504 households, 76 % of the households were male headed households and only 24% were female headed households. Among male headed households 53% were own right tenure of household's dwellings, 25% of the household were rent free, 16% were mortgage/loan and 7% were rented. Among female headed households, these percentages are 46%, 29%, 17% and 8% respectively.

6.4 Household size and gender of head of household

HH Size	% of male head	% of female head
Less than 5	57	75
5 – 8	39	21
Greater than 8	4	4
Total	76	24

Among male head of households, 57% of the households had less than 5 household members, 39% of the households had household members between 5 and 8 inclusive and 4% of the households had household members greater than 8. Among females these percentages are 75%, 21% and 4% respectively.

6.5 Household members in the workforce

No. of persons in workforce	Per cent of household	% of hh with head of hh age 15-64	% of hh with head of hh age >65
0	14	6	8
1	34	27	7
2	34	29	5
3	15	13	2

86% of the households had at least one household member in the workforce. 14% of the households had no household member in the workforce. Only 1% of the households had five household members in the workforce. 6% of the households with household head age 15-64 had no household member in the workforce and 8% of the households with household head age 64 and above had no household member in the workforce.

6.6 Income surplus/deficit and number of persons in the workforce

The majority of the household in Niue had at least one or two household members in

Number working	% of Household with Income		Total deficit	surplus
<3	61	39	100

Total	55	45	100

the work force. Niue HIES data shows that a household with at least three household members working is more likely to have annual income higher than expenditure than a household with less than three household members working.

6.7 Household Members

In Niue HIES 2002, questions were asked on the demographic, social and economic aspects of the household members. Particulars of household members such as relationship to head of household, sex, date of birth, marital status, educational status, activity status and occupation (for employed persons). This section will discuss the results on some aspects of household members.

6.7.1 Age Distribution

Children of 0-14 years old are young dependents in the family. Males and females are distributed evenly. In Niue 30% of household members are young dependents, 16% being for males and 14% being for females. Higher percentage of male young dependent than female young dependent are found in Niue. 60% of household members are in working age group and the proportion of male and female are even. 9% of household members are in the old dependent age group of 65 years and above, 4% for males and 5% for females. Percentage of female old age dependent is higher than those of male old age dependent.

6.7.2 Education Status

The survey results show that among about 17% of the household population 15 years

Education Qualification	Percentages		%Total
	%Male	%Female
No Qualification	7	11	17
Form 5	8	10	18

and above had no education qualification and the percentage of females with no education qualification is higher than that of males. About 7% of household population age 15 years and above hold trade certificate and the percentage of male trade certificate holder is higher than female trade certificate holder. The percentages of diploma, degree, post graduate diploma and master degree holders are 11%, 4%, 3% and 1% respectively. The survey result also show that male education qualification is higher than that of female education qualification in terms of trade certificate holders, diploma and degree holders.

Note: * means less than one per cent

6.7.3 Labour Force Status

Not all household members are employed persons. Household members who were older than 15 years and above are asked their activity status. Activity status was classified as:

- Working full time for wage or salary
- Working part time for wages (include casual)
- Working mainly to produce for sale
- Working mainly for own household consumption
- Unemployed
- Domestic duties and not working for wages
- Attending full time education
- Other (pensioner, disabled etc.)

Based on number of unemployed persons in each household, average number of unemployed person was estimated. Among household population 15 years and above 57% are paid labour force and 15% are unpaid labour force. Paid labour force consists of working full time for wage or salary, working part time for wages (include casual), Working mainly to produce for sale. Unpaid labour force consists of working mainly for own household consumption and domestic duties and not working for wages.

Unemployed contribute 6% of the household population 15 years and above. Non labour force contributes 22% of the household population 15 years and above.

6.8 Average Annual Household Income

Annual household income was collected from the following 15 income sources during Niue HIES 2002.

- | | | |
|---------------------------------------|------|-------------------------------|
| (1) Annual wage/salary income | (8) | Annual income from cash gifts |
| (2) Annual home consumption income | (9) | Annual income from gifts |
| (3) Annual income from benefits | (10) | Annual taro income |
| (4) Annual loan income | (11) | Annual fish income |
| (5) Annual income from other sources | (12) | Annual crop income |
| (6) Annual income from previous job | (13) | Annual income from services |
| (7) Annual income from other business | (14) | Annual handicraft income |
| | (15) | Annual stock income |

Average annual household income from the HIES is $32,487, compared to a median of $27,665, with the difference indicating that there are some households with high annual income 'inflating' the average (arithmetic mean).

The main source of income for households is that from wages and salaries, as expected given the high proportion of people aged over 15 years in the workforce. The importance of the value of goods – mostly food items – produced and consumed in the home (so called 'subsistence') is reflected in this being the second largest source of household income – 12% of total household income is produced by the households themselves. The significance of income from welfare payments, benefits and superannuation is reflected in the HIES results with this being the third most significant income source. However there is a strong reliance on income from loans in the HIES, with 48% of households having some 'loan' income, indicating that almost half of the households in Niue use loans to meet 'cash flow' problems.

6.9 Average annual household expenditure

Annual household expenditure was collected from the following 22 expenditure sources during Niue HIES 2002.

Average annual household expenditure from the HIES is $31,757, compared to a median of $27,049, again the difference indicates that there are some households with high annual expenditure 'inflating' the average expenditure.

Food, including the value of food produced and consumed in the home ('home consumption'), is the single most important expenditure, representing 34% of all expenditure. Home consumption is included in both income (the value when the item is produced) and expenditure (the value of the item when it is consumed).

Clearly most of a household's income is spent on food. Transport and household operation are the other two major expenditure types. Transport includes the purchase of vehicles and the 'running costs' for vehicles. Household operation includes expenditure on utilities (electricity, telephone, Post Office box rental etc) and household appliances, furniture, furnishings and supplies. Expenditure on housing includes the purchase (or hire) of materials for home improvements and repairs. Expenditure on other goods and services such as video, VCD, DVD hire, raffles, housie fines, performance and movie admission etc is also significant.

6.10 Comparison of income and expenditure

There are some technical issues to consider when comparing household income and expenditure. It is generally believed in HIES surveys the expenditure data is more accurate than the income data. Income is a sensitive topic to most people and some respondents are reluctant to disclose the full amount of their income, particularly if they have sensitive sources of income (for example, sources of income which they do not declare for taxation purposes). The diary method of collecting data has proven to be very effective in collecting certain types of income (home produce) and expenditure. Regular daily expenditures such as bread, sugar, milk, taro etc are examples of such data. However for major items purchased infrequently, or income received irregularly such as gifts, the diary method is inadvisable. This is usually addressed by having separate questionnaires with questions over a longer period (12 months) for these major items.

However the diary method does not 'capture' all data effectively – examples of items under reported in diaries include alcohol, tobacco, and other items considered socially unacceptable people are often reluctant to admit to the interviewer the full extent of their expenditure on such items. Alternative sources for estimating the expenditure on such items are often used, such as analysing production and import data for such items. This is advisable for the current survey.

With these concerns in mind, income and expenditure trends are relatively similar in Niue, apart from in the 'upper' income and expenditure groups. The analysis of the income and expenditure quartile distribution shows that when the household income and expenditure is divided into four equal groups, income and expenditure is similar for each quartile with the exception of the fourth quartile where expenditures are higher than incomes.

The comparison of annual income and expenditure shows that households with the lowest incomes are more likely to have expenditure higher than their income. Obviously for these households their daily living expenses are sometimes more than they can afford.

7. Comments and conclusion

Niue HIES 2002 was carried out with a relatively short period of four months preparation from May to August 2002. But Niue Statistics Unit was able to conduct the survey successfully. The sample frame covered all villages in Niue. The survey was designed to represent the sample population. The survey result shows that households with the lowest incomes are more likely to have expenditure higher than their income. This may be either due to the underreporting of the household income by the respondents and over reporting of household expenditure by the respondents, not reporting the extra income or due to actual overspending of the households. Except this unavoidable and some irregularities in the survey results, the survey results seem to shed light on household expenditure patterns and also yield valuable information for the computation of living cost based on CPI for Niue
